

Loch Ness Monster, Dead!?!

By Caden M.

Could the Loch Ness Monster be dead?!? Well, it could be dead. Sightings have declined to a third in the past year and now, legendary Nessie hunter Robert Rines thinks the monster is dead due to global warming. Robert Rines contacted Monster Quest to say he may have seen the corpse of the monster. Just to say, Monster Quest is a respected company that has a show on History Channel. So, Monster Quest is launching a search for the corpse of the Loch Ness Monster. But, if Nessie is dead, there are a lot of other lake monsters, like Champ and Ogopogo. So look up those cryptids, and then maybe they will become world famous as well!

Pictures from Wikipedia

ABIXIA

By Seth W.

Abixia is my imaginary country led by our prime minister, Abix (a.k.a. my cat).

Abixia is a small country that takes up half of a small u-shaped island off of the coast of the continent of Boldracia. It is mostly populated by cats and horses. Northern Abixia can get very cold in the winter although that is where Abixia City, the capitol, is located. There is a God named At (pronounced "Aht"). He is a large white stallion. At lives in the Abixian capital building.

Abixia has no navy, but it has a good army and air force. The army has 798,000 private troops, 500 snipers, 200 howitzer gunners, 254 Stalker 3 tanks, 1 2nd, and 1 leader. The air force has 21 planes, in 3 squadrons. Each squadron has 7 planes. Most pilots are aces, which means that they have shot down at least 10 enemy craft.